

The Manchurian President

AMERICA IS THE VICTIM OF Social Progressivism

On May 2, 1966 two Columbia University sociology professors, Richard Andrew Cloward and Frances Fox Piven published an article in The Nation magazine. The article? I'm paraphrasing the title: Forcing Political Change Through Orchestrated Crisis. The article spelled out the political-economic strategy that would hasten the fall of capitalism by overloading government with a flood of impossible and very costly demands that simply cannot be met.

It became known as the Cloward-Piven Strategy and it became the economic foundation of Saul Alinsky's Handbook for Radicals. The philosophy is one in which, if you create a serious enough financial crisis, you will be able to collapse the free enterprise system not just in the United States, but around the world. In the midst of that crisis, a social progressive world government can then be created to "restore order." (The Brits now call what they have "soft totalitarianism.")

At the heart of the "change" Obama promised are the bedrock positions of Cloward-Piven. "Change" always begins with a financial crisis. The financial crisis that overwhelmed the Election of 2008 was completely fabricated. It did not exist. It was made up. The advocates of social change used the Fed, which was complicit in the scheme, to engineer the change we are now experiencing. Well, we actually voted for what we got. We just failed to ask what it would be.

The crisis began with the subprime debacle. The Fed instituted a policy called "mark-to-market." This made every bank reduce the value of the collateral on their mortgage loans, and altered the banks' asset-to-debt ratios. Under Fed rules, they could no longer loan money to anyone. That created the financial crisis. Had the Fed rescinded the "mark-to-market" rule, every bank would have been okay. But the manipulators needed a crisis to implement change in America.

The Cloward-Piven laundry list of changes include: ■ a financial crisis that will allow the nationalization of banks ■ Give more power to unions. (Unions now own 71% of Chrysler and 17% of GM.) Working class investors who put money in GM bonds to supplement their 401Ks lost 100% of their money in bankruptcy court when a federal judge ruled against them. ■ Under Cloward-Piven no human being is illegal. The social progressive plan calls for blanket amnesty for all illegals—or anyone else who wants to come here. Obama will take it a step farther by providing illegal aliens with the right to apply for, and receive, driver's licenses—which, of course, means with a driver's license under the Motor Voter Act, they can vote.

The laundry list includes things from a single payer health care for everyone to increasing the power of unions against employers to further redistribute what wealth is left in America. The list continues to grow...but then, I think you get the picture.

Obama was the "come from nowhere" candidate which suddenly the money barons were backing for the White House. Obama's candidacy made Hillary Clinton—who was the favorite daughter before Obama became the favorite son—say, "Hey...I'm a 1920's social progressive, too!" Clinton realized the money barons needed a social progressive to move this country in the direction they wanted it to go—down the path of global totalitarianism.

Barack Hussein Obama, a man who cannot even prove he is a citizen of the United States, was the perfect Manchurian Candidate. He was chosen to implement the Cloward-Piven Strategy collapsing the economy of the United States and with it, the free enterprise system. The remaining market economies will be forced to succumb and the world will plunge into a unprecedented cataclysmic depression. The manufactured crisis and the rampant spending of money we do not have will ultimately be the collapse of the free market system. Combine that with the left's incessant demand for more "rights" (except for conservatives) and...well, once again, you get the picture.

The 4th of July is just around the corner. Tea Party Americans are meeting again. We're running out of time. I'm asking the Tea Party organizers to put the impeachment of Barack Obama at the top of their agenda. If we want to have any more Independence Day celebrations, we need be making some serious calls, emails, faxes, or telegrams to our Congressmen and Senators—in both parties—and letting them know if we still have Obama in Nov. 2010, they will be losing their jobs when we vote.

This isn't a popularity contest...this is still a fight to save America
